In 2002, ALoop was formed by Bo Larsen (Vocals), Peter Nordahn (Guitar), René Beck (Guitar), Thais Beermann (Drums) and Thomas Carlsen (Bass). Moving away from mainstream metal, ALoop strived to create energetic, brutal and melodic music charged with pure emotion. The goal was to create something entirely unique.

In 2005 ALoop debuted with the album "Global Crisis". The album was highly praised especially in Scandinavia and the rest of Europe. The album was nominated as metal album of the year by Danish Metal Awards and biggest Danish music magazine, Gaffa, wrote: "...the bands ability to combine brutality with melody makes Global Crisis one of the best metal albums this year". Building on a mixture of metal genres, ALoop has, over the years, created a much more absolute expression which at the same time is challenging yet familiar.

After the release of "Global Crisis", the band toured all over Denmark playing festivals such as The Way Up North Festival, Aalborg Metal Festival, Aarhus Metal Festival, etc.

On stage, ALoop is pure energy challenging the audience with a professional, groundbreaking and mind blowing metal expression.

In 2007, ALoop parted ways with Peter Nordahn (Guitar) and a new band member was found as Henrik Mortensen, a highly skilled guitar player, joined the band. Mortensen was a great boost of energy and with his unique playing style he suited the ALoop sound perfectly. Thus, rooted in the ALoop universe, the band continued its metal voyage and wrote the album "Dead End / New Deal" recorded and mixed by Jacob Hansen.

As suggested by the title ALoop has redefined their pulverizing sound and created a much more absolute expression. Thus, including traits from metal, country, rock, pop and even horror, ALoop cannot be categorized within a specific musical genre. "Dead End / New Deal" adopts a boundary-crossing and emotionally charged metal expression.

Lyrically, ALoop explores human consciousness starting out from a series of tales found in the form of fiction and non-fiction. In a way, ALoop attempts to map the human condition and how we are linked together.

As it investigates the life and death of humanity, it similarly affects the emotional status of the listener – Are you ready for the New Deal?
